Transcription Data:

The world is now one big small town. But within that virtual town square, there are tears of relationships, degrees of intimacy, and everyone deserves a different amount of you, a different side. Now where those boundaries lie is up to you. I try to wait 48 hours before posting and sharing, Because that way I can be present in private with the people I love before calculating how I'm going to publicly position it. And post with purpose before I share, I ask myself why, what's the purpose? And most importantly, how does it serve the people I love? Because cultivating a private life is precious. It's sacred. This value is inherent in what you don't share.
